"The fact is, Mamma, I love him"	128
So she burned the morsel of paper	233
She set her lamp down on the snowy deal table in the Kitchen, and Otto came and took her hand and stood beside her, looking into her soft, brown eyes until they drooped beneath his gaze	258
"You must come"	381
"And I ain't in a hurry either,—am I, Mamma?"	503
Phineas had no alternative but to read the letter	636
"I mean what I say. Why should I care?"	739
